Christmas passed off quietly. The day was warm and pleasant and every body seemed to be perfectly happy. Only one thing was lacking to make the day an ideal one and that was good sleighing.

Whether or not the people of Logan are aware of it, they have had some of the foremost actors and actresses of America rehearsing right here among them for the past two weeks in "Corianton".

Wyoming has for years been a rich field for collectors of old fossils. Almost every known animal has been found there in the fossil state, and Dr. Wortman of the Peabody museum has unearthed the skull and jaws of a fossil monkey. Wyoming was a wonderful country in the olden days.

Elizabeth Vigoureux, who plays the lead in "Corianton", opening here New Year's night, has scored a great success as Rosellind in "As You Like It," also as Pauline in "Lady of Lyons." Miss Vigoureux expects to make her greatest triumph as Zoan Ze Isabel in "Corianton," this role being even a rival to Cleopatra.

E. T. Hyde elicited the sympathy of the entire community yesterday. He sent the boy up town to get a bottle of twenty year old Maderia. The boy got the bottle alright and went down to the post office to get the mail. As he came out of the door the bottle slipped from the paper and striking the cement pavement spread its contents over the sidewalk. He was becoming reconciled to the loss when the last bulletin was received.

J. A. Edson who was train dispatcher of the old Utah & Northern Ry. at the time Hon. G. W. Thatcher was Suprentendent when the head offices were located in Logan, has been appointed General Manager of the D. & R. G. & R. Y. W. Ry. system.

The hot tamale man was in trouble last night. It seems that he imbued too freely of tangle foot and in trying to navigate along main street fell over his can and bumped his nose on the pavement, with the result that it looked this morning like a dozen hogs had been slaughtered there.

John Thompson and his brother Samuel are over from Clarkston and report the health of the people as generally good. Jack says the Clarkston people know how to enjoy life, for they are not like the Loganites who are thinking and dreaming constantly how they can reach a dollar.

Emer Crockett Jr. was suddenly attacked this morning with a dizziness that made him almost unconscious. Young Emer has suffered from rheumatism of late, which his attending physician says has caused a stagnation of his blood to some extent which resulted in irregularities in his system.

Anderson and Larsen have engaged J. C. Walters to conduct their defense in the election contest and they will fight the matter to a finish if necessary, rather than be robbed of the offices to which they have been duly elected. Prominent Democrats from all parts of the county condemn the action of their party in bringing the suit and predict that it will result only in injury to the party. Parties from Wellsville and from some of the other precincts where the illegal votes are supposed to have been cast assert that there will be a surprise party in store for the plaintiffs when the case comes up for a hearing.

Just how carefully a cast of characters for a mammoth production like "Corianton" is selected is strikingly illustrated by the special qualifications of Carl Smith Seerle, who plays Seantum and Walter Percival who plays the sublime Shiblon. The select few who have gained access to rehearsal note that when Mr. Seerle is on the stage as Seantum he commands the situation; he is the master, the king in bearing and in voice. His reserve force and fund of voice is so marked it appears as if he could go twice as far if he wished. In the case of Mr. Percival who plays Shiblon, "pious son of High Priest Alma," one notes not the metallic but the soothing effects of his well modulated voice. He has spent much time and money in perfecting his voice and not without reward.
